Get the Advantage

Graduate with your High School Diploma and an Associate Degree in Network Systems Administration or Web Graphic Design

DeVry University
Advantage
Academy
High School
in partnership with
Chicago Public Schools

Accelerate Your Future

We can help you graduate with your high school diploma and an associate degree in Network Systems Administration or Web Graphic Design.

Dual Enrollment — Take college and high school courses at the same time. Attend classes at the Chicago Campus of DeVry University, 3300 N. Campbell Ave. (near Belmont and Western).

Compressed Instruction — Program allows you to graduate with an associate degree and your high school diploma at the same time.

No Cost for Eligible Courses — Tuition, books and technology fees are paid for by the Chicago Board of Education for eligible courses.

Professional Educators — High school courses are taught by board-certified Chicago Public School teachers. College courses are taught by industry-experienced DeVry University professors.

Personalized Support — All University services, including library and lab access, tutoring, mentoring, membership in professional student organizations and graduate employment assistance, are available to high school participants of this accelerated program.

Real-world Experience — Both the Network Systems Administration and Web Graphic Design curricula were developed with industry input and are delivered in labs and classrooms. Graduates have the skills to hit the ground running.

Continuous Learning — Graduates may choose to continue their education and earn a bachelor’s degree from DeVry University or apply to another college or university.
